

Georgia Society of Gastroenterology Nurses and Associates

Check it out.....!!!

Our website "georgiasgna.org" has a brand new look!

Not only a new look but the platform is more user friendly and it's content hopefully is/will be more informative and of interest to our viewers. Its responsive design makes it accessible on mobile devices. I encourage you all to visit this site, take notes and a moment to let me or one of the board members know what you would like to see on the website. The site is intended to be a resource to our members. I encourage you all to contribute information on items you believe would be of interest to others in our profession as well as photo's / video's, events or activities. Though the new website is a lot better then what it once was, you can help to make it a greater resource for GASGNA.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Hi all you lovers of all that is GI! Well this year has flown by and I have had an exciting, educational and inspirational term. All the work that leads up to that annual State Conference was well worth it and I hope you all felt that way too. I have been a GI Nurse for 30 some years and I learned so much from the expertise of our speakers, and so thankful they give of their time for our benefit.

So what's up now?

1. Members should have received an e-mail that it's time to renew your membership. SGNA needs you so don't delay!

2. Election Day is November 8th, so the Northern Division Business and Educational meeting was moved up to Nov. 1st. It will be held at ERBE, with dinner, business meeting and 1 contact hour with speaker Kristie Briggs!
3. The National SGNA Conference will be held in New Orleans in May of 2017, so plan ahead and note that scholarships are available to assist with cost.
